

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface to the Fourth Edition	ix
Acknowledgements	xv
Introduction	xvii
Herbal Agents - Contraindications, Drug Interactions, and Complementary Adjuncts	25
Designation of Contraindications, Drug Interactions, Complementary Adjuncts, Side Effects, and Types of Evidence	27
Legend for Categories	31
Appendix A – Herbs to Be Used With Caution
1. Due to Potential Allergic Response	345
2. Due to Potential Photosensitizing Effect	347
3. Due to Local Irritant Effects When Fresh	348
4. In Acute Inflammation of the Urinary Tract	350
5. In Gastrointestinal Irritation	352
6. In Hypothyroid Conditions or Euthyroid Goiter	355
7. Due to Potential Adverse Effects	356
Appendix B – Herbal-Drug Interactions
1. Modifying Intestinal Absorption of Medicines	361
2. Potentiating Cardiotonic Medicines	371
3. Potentiating Sedative or Tranquilizing Medicines	373
4. Modifying Blood Sugar in Diabetics	374
5. Modifying the Effects of Anticoagulants	379
6. Concerning Incompatible Gastrointestinal Tract Medications	386
7. Modifying Enzyme Activities in Metabolic Conversions	387
Appendix C – Herbs Contraindicated For Mothers and Children
1. During Pregnancy	439

Contents (cont'd)

- 2. While Breast Feeding 450
- 3. In Children 453

Appendix D – Vitamin/Mineral/Drug Interactions

- 1. Drug and Mineral Interactions with Vitamin Supplements 457
- 2. Drug and Vitamin Interactions with Mineral Supplements 467

Appendix E – Herbals as Potential Complementary Adjuncts with Medicines

- 1. Potentially Beneficial Combinations of Herbals with Drugs 483
- 2. Herbal Aids for Modifying Substance Abuse 488
- 3. Complementing Treatment of Inflammations 492
- 4. Enhancing Chemotherapy and Chemoprevention or Reducing the Adverse Effects 494
- 5. Herbals for Preventing and Healing Radiation Adverse Effects and/or Enhancing Radiotherapy or Photodynamic Therapy 502
- 6. Herbals and Anti-infectious Agents 505

Reference sources 514

Index 515